

Sanofi welcomes new Head of Supply Chain, Ruhul Moula

Sydney, 2 March. Sanofi is pleased to welcome Ruhul Moula who will lead the Supply Chain function in Australia & New Zealand, supporting the General Medicines, Specialty Care and Vaccines businesses. Ruhul has deep knowledge of Sanofi and the complex and changing supply chain landscape following eight years in Head of Supply Chain roles across Bangladesh and Indonesia.

Karen Hood,

Country Lead, Australia & New Zealand.

“Protecting the delivery of medicines and vaccines is a critical part of our purpose to improve people’s lives. Doing so in a changing world, with minimal disruption, is easier said than done. We are incredibly proud of our people in Supply Chain and the way they act for patients and customers across the region each day. We are thrilled to welcome Ruhul Moula to lead this team.”

“Ruhul has demonstrated strength, resilience and partnership improving supply chain efficiency, financial performance and nurturing high performing teams. Ruhul’s experience across other dynamic markets will be a terrific asset when navigating ours, and the expectations of our stakeholders along the product to patient pathway.”

Ruhul will relocate to Australia with his family in coming months.

Ruhul Moula,

Head of Supply Chain, Australia & New Zealand

“I have had the pleasure to work with the Supply Chain team in Australia and New Zealand on various global initiatives, and to share learnings between our dynamic markets.”

“The COVID-19 pandemic unveiled opportunities for improvement across many industries. In healthcare, it has reinforced the importance of managing a supply chain system that is sustainable and resilient, while also meeting the needs of patients and customers.”

“I have been impressed by the team’s tenacity and care in navigating complex supply chain systems during this particularly challenging time, and protecting delivery every day. I am excited to now build upon that, together.”
